Donor 3563
Interview Notes

Donor 3563 is talkative, friendly, full of energy and extremely goal oriented. He is currently attending university where he is majoring in political science. We spoke extensively about his long-term career plans that revolve around his desire to attend law school. He expressed an interest in international law, criminal law and corporate law. When I asked him to discuss his interest in corporate law he explained that his interest is born from his awareness of the way in which people can take advantage of big businesses.

Donor 3563 also displayed an awareness and sensitivity towards underprivileged groups. He discussed his plans to begin volunteering with a local high school tutoring project and additionally, he discussed his exposure to underprivileged communities while traveling around the United States as a young child with his father. This exposure is also what has motivated him to pursue a career in law. In his own words he “wants to make enough money to be with his family and to give them everything they need”.

Donor 3563 is quite athletic. He grew up playing baseball and soccer, swimming and running. Currently practices long distance running. (He chose not to run competitively while in school because he wanted ample time to focus on his studies.)

Donor 3563 occasionally writes articles for local newspapers on the implications of state legislation. He worked for the Democratic National Convention and hopes to intern with a senator in Washington, DC this summer. He has a friendly face, dark hair, fair skin, and large eyes.
