Donor # 3869
Interview Notes

Immediately, one would say that donor 3869 walks to the beat of his own drum. His alternative style and somewhat elusive demeanor makes him a difficult read at first. However, after speaking with him it becomes very obvious that he is much more considerate and conscientious than one may assume.

Donor 3869 has an eclectic punk rocker dress code. He wore torn jeans, weathered checkered vans, a bandana and a metal chocker. It would not be surprising to see donor 3869 walking down the street with his ear buds blaring music into his ears. He has a bright beautiful grin and light blue almond shaped eyes. His skin is fair and creamy but looks as if exposure to the sun would give him a sun-kissed look and result in a tan.

The donor spoke fondly of his father, revering him as a very intelligent man. He explained that his interactions with his father were always very respectful, with disagreements often being more like negotiations rather than fights. His sister, like himself, is a very creative person. She enjoys drawing and hopes to go into fashion design.

Donor 3869 takes particular care of his health. He monitors what he eats, choosing healthier options when possible. He was also very thorough about his test results, asking to review them so he could receive the most detailed information as possible. These inquiries always prove to be very reassuring for our staff because it shows that he pays attention to detail.

Overall, I would say that although donor 3869 may be considered a travelin' man, he is also a grounded person that is taking advantage of his youth, and the flexibility that it provides. He is a daring individual that is not afraid to live life outside of traditional parameters.
