Donor # 4082
Interview Notes

Donor 4082 appeared calm and grounded in our first meeting, which was an impression that lasted throughout the interview. He has striking grey-green eyes, which were probably reflecting his grey polo-shirt, as he describes them as blue-yellow. He was also wearing khaki shorts and flip-flop sandals: he looked clean-cut, but casually so. He has nice, medium-brown, medium-thick hair that has a short and simple ‘wash-and-go’ look to it. He has a medium build and long legs; he looked tan and fit, a testament to his interest in many sports and outdoor activities.

Donor 4082 runs and does a cardio work-out every day. He also plays baseball, football and soccer regularly – he describes himself as competitive and a natural leader, on the field as well as in other group settings. He was an Eagle Scout until the age of 18. This donor seems to have a habit of finishing what he starts.

Donor 4082 seems a little shy at first, but lights up and becomes enthusiastic upon deeper conversation. This donor articulated that he does not feel shy, but reserved - noting that he only tends to speak when it is necessary as opposed to filling silence. I found this donor to be quite friendly and easy to talk to. He was modest and had a gentle demeanor.

Donor 4082 explained that he was close with his entire family, especially his sister – his eyes beamed when he mentioned her. They live nearby one another, and see each other often. This donor is currently studying engineering, and hopes to eventually go into aerospace research. He mentioned that he wants to design planes and spaceships, but plans to avoid participating in the creation of missiles and other weapons for moral reasons. His polo shirt had a blueprint style drawing of a satellite on it – overall I would label this donor as a young and attractive sporty nerd.
