Donor # 4320
Interview Notes

Donor 4320 is a typical guy's guy. He came to his interview wearing a white short-sleeved Tommy Hilfiger polo shirt, blue hued plaid knee-length shorts and black flip flops. His skin is tanned in that classically outdoorsy way. His body type is medium/average, and he has wavy brown hair parted down the middle with a slightly thinning crown. His ears stick out a bit at the edges and his eyes are a deep set beautiful grey-blue. Donor 4320 looks very much the part of an all American Abercrombie & Fitch man in his 30's on his way to law school. I would say the donor looks like Dominic Monaghan with a shorter face, more larger ears and darker brown hair <http://www.imdb.com/media/rm2820774656/nm0597480>

Donor 4320 is a driven man who seems to hold himself to a very high standard. His narrative answers repeatedly quote his academic test scores, awards and achievements. I get the feeling that he was raised to believe these things to be important measures of success. It is most likely this sort of intense focus helps him excel in academics. He also seems adept at multi-tasking in his career and hobbies. This is reflected in his long list of sport interests, hobbies and jobs.

Donor 4320 had a very idyllic Middle-America upbringing complete with horse-back riding, fishing, skiing and outdoor sports with his very close-knit family against the back drop of rural Idaho and Utah. He commented on how beautiful it was where he grew up. He has a large family of 4 boys and 3 girls and was raised in the church of Jesus Christ Church of Latter Day Saints. He talked about how much he loved growing up in a big family and of his sadness that his daughter is an only child. He also quipped at how competitive he and his siblings were. His entire family appears to be very active and healthy and involved in a wide range of sports, arts and intellectual pursuits. I could tell that he was raised to value family above all other things in life.
