Donor # 4393 Interview Notes

Donor 4393 is a handsome and well put together young man. He came to the interview wearing a fitted light grey cotton t-shirt, an army green, military style jacket, designer skinny dark jeans and very clean, all black canvas Converse, high-tops. His short dark hair is in a spiky do but not over worked. He has a round face with symmetrical, broad features. His lips are full and rounded and his teeth perfectly straight. He has large, dark eyes and has a steady meaningful gaze, something you rarely see in new donors. He has large gage plugs for earrings and a few noticeable tattoos peeking out from under his sleeve.

Donor 4393 has a cool and confident demeanor. I got the impression that he easily achieves his goals in life. Although he claims he has always been a nerd, it seems to me he has grown out of that completely. Rooted in family, donor 4393 speaks highly of his parents, with whom he talks daily. He is particularly proud and inspired by his father. He shared that his father is a self made man who worked until he was given an honorary degree. I noticed a well spoken quality about him and his clearly instilled good manners were hard to miss.

Donor 4393's array of activities and interests are diverse and well rounded. As a child, the donor was classically trained in jazz for six years. He now plays the drums on an electric drum kit. He loves sports and excels in math. He admits that he loves superhero fiction and watches the game show network on cable. He also loves trivia and wants very much to be on a game show one day. He was the kind of kid who did word searches for fun. He particularly loves Jeopardy and is working hard to pass the test to be on the show. All in all I found the donor to be charming and cute.
